Content

What knowledge do you want to convey?

(a) Ask question first, eg "how do logos change over time," THEN find the data…

(b) Have the data, eg, "we observed traffic for x years and will now display driver behavior."

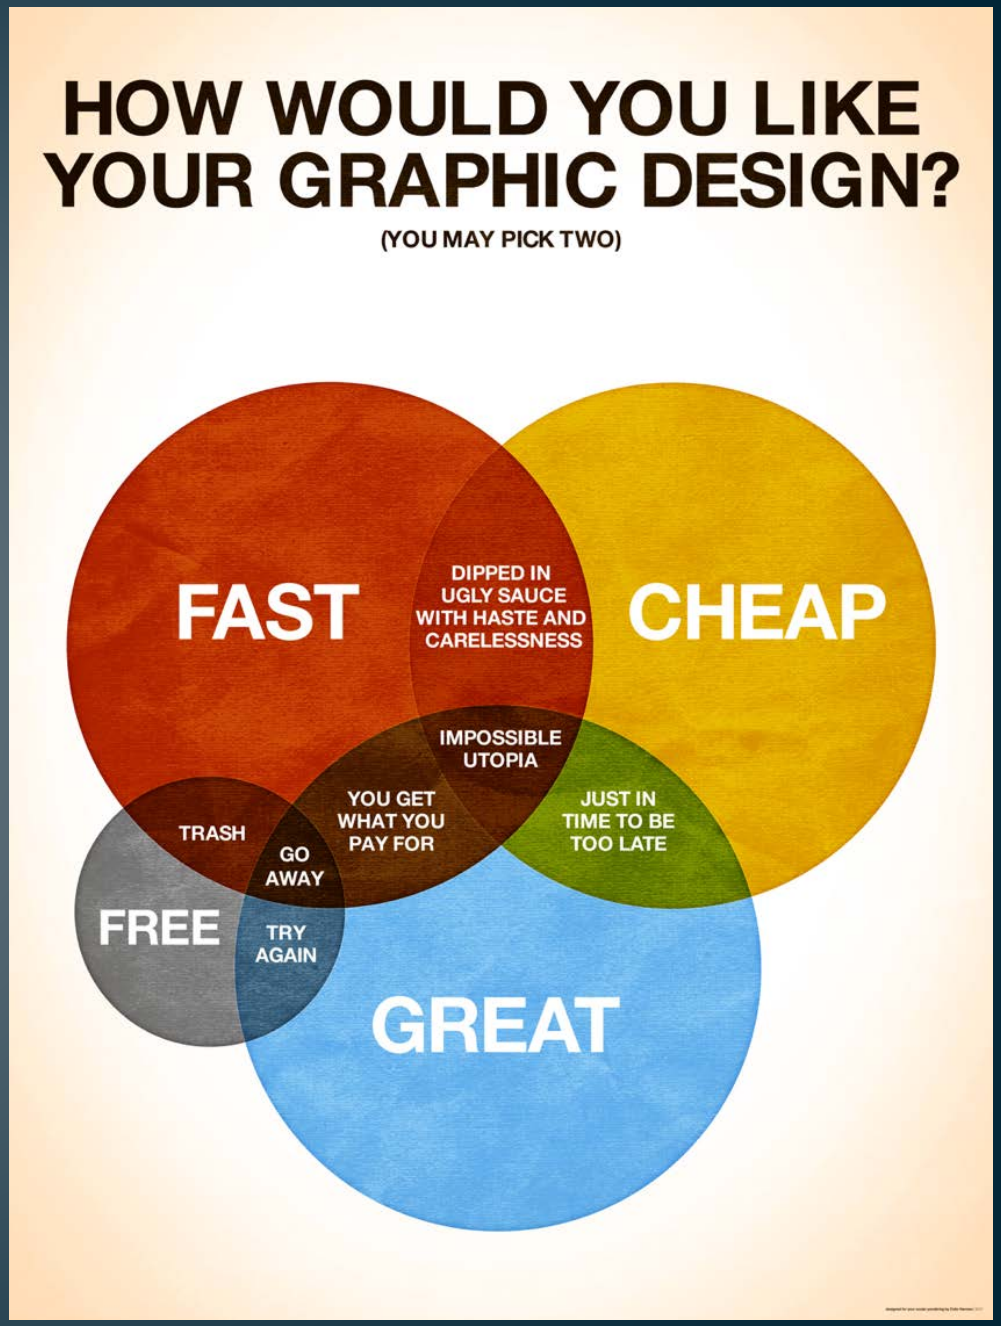
Design Priorities



Web Accessibility FOR Designers

Great web accessibility starts in the design.

Plan Heading Structure Early
Ensure all content and design fits into a logical heading structure.

Consider Reading Order
The reading order should be the same as the visual order.

Good
Bad

Provide Good Contrast
Be especially careful with light shades of gray, orange, and yellow.

Abc

Use True Text Whenever Possible
True text enlarges better, loads faster, and is easier to translate. Use CSS to add visual style.

CAPS!

Watch the Use of CAPS
All caps can be difficult to read and can be read incorrectly by screen readers.

10pt+

Use Adequate Font Size
Font size can vary based on the font chosen, but 10 point is usually a minimum.

Abcdefg

Remember Line Length
Don't make it too long or too short.

Link

Make Sure Links are Recognizable

Differentiate links in the body of the page with underlines or something other than color alone.

Design Link Focus Indicators

Ensure keyboard users can visually identify links when navigating with a keyboard.

Skip

Design a "Skip to Main Content" Link

A keyboard accessible link for users to skip navigation should be at the top of the page.

Click Here

Ensure Link Text Makes Sense on Its Own

Avoid "Click Here" or other ambiguous link text, such as "More" or "Continue".

Use Animation, Video, and Audio Carefully

Provide a play/pause button. Avoid flashing or strobing content that could cause seizures.

Don't Convey Content with Color Alone

Users often can't distinguish or may override page colors.

Search

Design Accessible Form Controls

Ensure form controls have descriptive labels, instructions, and validation/error messages.

2012 AUCD Network Report

December 2, 2012

The Association of University Centers on Disabilities (AUCD), located in Silver Spring, MD, promotes and supports three national networks of interdisciplinary university-based centers on disabilities. The members of AUCD represent every U.S. state and territory and include 67 UCEDDs (University Centers for Excellence in Developmental Disabilities), 43 LENDs (Interdisciplinary Leadership Education in Neurodevelopmental and Related Disabilities Programs) and 15 IDDRCs (Intellectual and Developmental Disabilities Research Centers).

Our Mission: AUCD envisions a future in which everyone, including people living with developmental and other disabilities, are fully integrated, participating members of their communities and in which culturally appropriate supports that lead to independence, productivity, and a satisfying quality of life are universally available across the life span.
