The Emerging Transformational Leadership Program

Jeffrey P. Brosco MD PhD
Professor of Clinical Pediatrics, University of Miami Miller School of Medicine
LEND Director, Mailman Center for Child Development

Shelly Baer, LCSW, Coordinator, ETLP, SALT, Associate Director, Training, Clinical Social Worker, University of Miami School of Medicine, Mailman Center for Child Development
Objectives

- Recognize the challenges of LEND programs that seek to have a direct impact on systems of care for people with intellectual/developmental disabilities

- Describe at least one training program designed to address these challenges

- Consider how the lessons learned from group-based intervention of post-service professionals may be applied to LEND training
Is it possible for a LEND program to have a direct impact on systems of care?
LEND History

- 1960s/70s - Workforce development for DD population (interdisciplinary teams of professionals)
- 1980s/90s – Leadership, family-centered, culturally competent
- 2000s/10s – Autism, social determinants of health, systems change
Mailman LEND

- 2001 – Measure CSHCN unmet health care needs
- 2006 – LEND program can reduce unmet needs
  - Not in a measureable way
- 2011 – LEND program can lead directly to systems change by post-graduates doing a group project
  - We are hopeful . . .
Why unique?

- Leadership program with a twist
- Learn applicable leadership skills and disability content
- Focus on building/enhancing leaders to serve an underserved population
- Group action project
Emerging Transformational Leadership Program (ETLP) BORN!

Vision: Children with developmental disabilities will receive high quality health care, experience optimal individual development, and feel included in community activities.

Mission: To create and sustain an experiential learning program for emerging leaders that provides the knowledge, skills, and attitude to improve systems of care for children with developmental disabilities.
ETLP Objectives

- A cohort of 5-8 emerging leaders will complete a 9 month mentored leadership experience.
- Each ETLP cohort generates a group project that provides an action plan to reorient local systems of care around continuous quality improvement for a specific outcome critical to children with NDD/ASD and their families.
- Within the next 5 years, at least one ETLP plan will receive community support and begin implementation in South Florida.
ETLP Fellow criteria

Participants will be a select group reflective of South Florida’s diversity and include 1 -2 participants from each of these categories:

- Recent LEND trainee graduate
- Early and mid-career individuals from community (e.g. professional in practice)
- Member of local MCH Title V program or public health department
- Parent/self-advocate
- Local not-for-profit agency
ETLP Candidates will:

- Demonstrate potential for leadership
- Possess courage, compassion, conviction and integrity
- Are committed to working in the South Florida disability community
- Are creative and “outside the box” thinkers
- Demonstrate a passion to make a difference
- Open to activities and ideas outside their profession
- Accept responsibility to participate in all activities related to the program for a nine-month period
- Receive a written commitment from his/her employer (if applicable) agreeing to provide up to 5 non-consecutive days release time from work responsibilities in order to attend ETLP activities
Nomination and selection process

- Advisory board
- Mailman Center Advisory Board (MAC)
- LEND faculty and staff
- Application
- Interview with Coordinator and Director
Curriculum

Nine month program, meet twice a month

Fall Topics
Diversity
- Self-awareness/social model of disability

Disability Systems of Care
- Education system
- Health & Well-being

Leadership Intensive (Full day)
- Public policy/advocacy, communication skills, navigating conflict, leadership compass, public speaking

Spring Focus: development/creating group project
ETLP Formula

5-8 Emerging Leaders (interdisciplinary) + Great Project Idea = Systems Change AND Community Support that should be no pressure??

ETLP Process - 1. Education
ETLP Process - 2. Self-Discovery

- Who am I?
- What talents do each of us bring to the table?
- What are we individually/collectively passionate about?
- What type of leader am I?
ETLP Process- 3. Project Selection

- Divide into small groups
- Develop project concepts
- Presentation to larger group
- Selection process

- Group Formation

- Project Definition
  - Is this “systems” change?
  - Is the project meeting our intended goals?

- Re-evaluation
ETLP Groups - 2011 to current

- Year One-four selected: public health, social work, special education and a parent

- Year Two- seven selected: two parents, self-advocate, special education (2), public policy, coordinator of Early Discovery

- Current Year- six Fellows: one parent, disability civil rights attorney (sibling), special educator, public health, occupational therapist and family care coordinator
Group Action Project Ideas

- Inaugural Cohort: Improving newborn screening in immigrant populations

- Second Year Cohort: Disability History and Awareness Curriculum

- Current Class: in process- Boundless and Inclusive Parks, accessibility issues (equipment, paths) and increased programming, activities
Fellow Feedback - Post completion of 9 months

- Increased knowledge about disabilities; newborn screening, disability history
- Met wonderful community leaders
- Learned type of leader would want to be and not to be
- Honored to be selected and part of new initiative
- Small changes can grow into bigger changes
- Clarity regarding own mission and commitment to the disability community
- Learning from other ETLP group members
- New confidence
- Increased comfort level speaking in groups
- Was able to share uncomfortable feelings to group, before would have walked away or held inside
- Look at self as leader and realized own strengths and weaknesses through self-reflective activities
- Can be a force for change and need to have by-in for my ideas
Evaluation

- Utilize Leadership Practices Inventory by Kouzes & Posner, pre and post: scores improved

- Mid-semester evaluation of Fall topics- due in January

- End of program evaluation
Lessons Learned

- Group project idea, start earlier in the program
- Larger cohort of Fellows
- Integrate LPI content throughout 9 months
- Have coordinator and consultant be more active in mentoring Fellow’s individual leadership goals—BEGAN coaching piece this year
- Assist group in dealing with communication breakdowns
Challenges, next steps, ideas

- Adult learners: balance of didactic and experiential
- Group process learning versus Coordinator intervening during communication breakdowns
- Web based learning community and sharing
- Developing a non-credit course at University
- Keep in touch with alumni, how are they integrating what they learned in ETLP to work, life?
ETLP Impact—Where are they now?

11 alumni-9 responded to survey

- 1 currently in PhD program
- 3 planning to enroll in higher education within the next 5 years
- 1 promoted to supervisory role
- 4 increased leadership responsibilities at job
- 6 involved on non-profit boards in community
- 2 involved in national/policy level initiatives (Reauthorization of the Combating Autism Act, Big Cities Coalition)
Impact continued:

- “This has been a life changing experience for me. I am feeling more confident in my communication skills both professionally and personally...public speaking skills have improved greatly...when conducting committee meetings, more confident working in large groups with strong-minded individuals. I am definitely a better person having experienced this program.”

- “I feel that the ETLP has had an impact on me professionally in that it helped me grow as a leader and helped me build my confidence in regards to public speaking...can now make connections between public health and childhood disabilities.”

- “Taught me to learn vital skills such as goal setting, policy development, and individual learning styles and approaches to work.”
Acknowledgments

- Danny Armstrong, Ph.D. Director, Mailman Center
- Jeff Brosco, M.D., Ph.D., LEND Director
- Michelle Schladant, Ph.D, Training Director, LEND Program
- Bethany Sands, Consultant/Co-Facilitator, Early Learning Coalition
- All three cohorts “ETLP Mailman Fellows”
ETLP Fellows- Class I, II and III