Act Early Ambassador Program Overview

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's \(CDC\) National Center on Birth Defects and Developmental Disabilities and the Association of University Centers on Disabilities \(AUCD\) with support from the Health Resources and Services Administration \(HRSA\), Maternal and Child Health Bureau \(MCHB\), announce a limited funding opportunity for Act Early Ambassadors to work with CDC's "Learn the Signs. Act Early." (LTSAE) program to improve early identification of developmental delays and disabilities, including autism, by:

- promoting the adoption and integration of LTSAE resources and materials to support developmental monitoring in systems that serve young children and their families;
- serving as a state or territorial representative of CDC’s national LTSAE program; and
- supporting the work of Act Early Teams and other state/territorial or national initiatives to improve early identification of developmental delay and disability.

Learn the Signs. Act Early. Program Background

CDC’s “Learn the Signs. Act Early.” program aims to improve early identification of developmental delays and disabilities, including autism, by promoting parent-engaged developmental monitoring (regularly tracking milestones) so children and their families can get the services and support they need as early as possible.

Parent-engaged developmental monitoring, using parent-friendly milestone checklists like those offered by LTSAE, is important for early identification of developmental delays and disabilities. Developmental monitoring (surveillance) in addition to periodic developmental screening are recommended by the American Academy of pediatrics. While other efforts focus on the promotion of routine general developmental and autism-specific screening, the focus of LTSAE is to engage, educate, and empower parents and other caregivers to monitor milestones and discuss a child’s developmental progress between recommended screenings. LTSAE complements screening by engaging those who care for young children in celebrating a child’s developmental progress and discussing any concerns. If concerns are identified during monitoring, LTSAE reinforces the AAP’s recommendation for a developmental screening or direct referral for further evaluation and services.

Qualifications for an Act Early Ambassadorship

Most importantly, this leadership opportunity aims to identify individuals who share the “Learn the Signs. Act Early.” commitment to improving systems and outcomes related to identifying young children with developmental delay and disability early so they and their families can get the help they need.

This opportunity is open to all who meet the criteria and can fulfill the responsibilities. Those who have previously served as Act Early Ambassadors are eligible to re-apply. Awards will be made based on an objective review of all applicants that includes standardized scoring, past participation (for returning Ambassadors), 2 independent reviews, and group discussion.

To be considered, applicants must:

- reside or physically work in the state/territory they wish to represent as an Ambassador;
- be connected to or familiar with state/territory/tribal programs that serve young children and their families, such as child care, WIC, Early Head Start, home visiting, or others;
- be involved in or familiar with any cross-systems efforts to improve developmental monitoring/screening and early identification of developmental delay and disability in their state/territory;

- have knowledge and expertise in child development and/or systems that support families with young children, and/or early identification and referral for developmental delay/disability;
- have good presentation and communication skills; and
- have a strong interest in working collaboratively to further the goals of the “Learn the Signs. Act Early.” program in their state or territory.

Responsibilities of the Act Early Ambassador

Ambassadors are encouraged to apply individual creativity and expertise toward meeting their state’s or territory’s unique challenges related to early identification. Some examples of past creative activities to promote early identification can be found here. Successful Ambassadors are highly-resourceful and seek strategic connections. Act Early Ambassador responsibilities typically require about 6-10 hours per month. Act Early Ambassadors are required to:

- work with CDC’s LTSAE program, AUCD, fellow Ambassadors, and their state’s Act Early state team or other related collaborative initiatives to support national, state/territorial, and local activities to improve early identification of developmental delay and disability;
- focus efforts on increasing developmental monitoring through the promotion and sustained integration of LTSAE materials into statewide systems and other programs that serve families with young children;
- collaborate with programs that serve young children and their parents, such as Head Start and Early Head Start, WIC, home visiting, IDEA Part C/Child Find and others, as well as health care and child care professionals to introduce and sustainably integrate LTSAE developmental monitoring tools and trainings into the work of those programs with parents and professionals;
- make a 1-year commitment to this program (March 1, 2020—Feb 28, 2021), however, at the end of this 1 year opportunity, the selected Ambassadors will be eligible to re compete for subsequent 2 year terms;
- attend a 2-day Ambassador training at CDC in Atlanta (scheduled for April 6 and 7, 2020);
- develop, maintain and implement a work plan that includes at least 2 Ambassador goals; at least 1 of your goals must advance the adoption and sustained integration of developmental monitoring using LTSAE in one statewide system/program such as WIC, home visiting, IDEA Part C/Child Find, early care and education (including early Head Start), child welfare, or similar;
- participate in 90-minute Ambassador calls with AUCD and CDC every other month;
- prepare an annual report of Ambassador activities; and
- complete pre- and post-Ambassadorship surveys.

Additionally, Act Early Ambassadors are encouraged (but not required) to:

- collaborate with state agencies and others to improve policy and programs related to early identification;
- post updates and share resources among the network of Ambassadors (through the Ambassador email listserv and other mechanisms);
- participate in 1-hour “learning circle” webinars every other month;

- participate in 1-hour evaluation workshops every month;
- participate in 1-hour, topic-specific “Act Early” webinars on a quarterly basis; and
- present Ambassador achievements and lessons learned at state and national conferences and other appropriate forums.

Act Early Ambassador Support

To support Ambassadors, AUCD will provide:

- $4,000 annual stipend plus travel expenses to Atlanta, GA, for annual Ambassador training.
 - Stipend can be used to support a variety of activities related to the implementation of the Ambassador work plan (e.g., local travel, meeting costs, printing, etc.). Please note, if you cannot accept a stipend for Ambassador efforts related to work you’re already carrying out, you can use the stipend for convening meetings, printing materials, etc.
- Scheduled and as-needed technical assistance provided by email, phone and webinar.
- Structured peer support, and a forum to network, share ideas and problem-solve with colleagues working on similar issues nationwide.
 - Note: participation in in-person meetings, webinars, and the Ambassador group email list helps keep Ambassadors connected with one another; this connection to other Ambassadors is among the most valued aspects of the Ambassador experience.
- Technical expertise and consultation, and information from leading national experts in the fields of child development, developmental disability, and health promotion.

2020-2021 Act Early Ambassador and Application Timeline

The timeline below has been provided to help applicants assess their ability to complete the requirements of the Ambassadorship. A final work plan will be developed by the selected applicants in partnership with AUCD and CDC.
