  - Webinar: Recruitment and Selection of Self-Advocate Trainees- What is the Right Fit?
  - Tip Sheet: Role of Self-Advocate Faculty
Learning Objectives

- Understand the need for and the purpose of the LEND Self-Advocacy Discipline Competencies.
- Introduce ways to use the competencies to meet discipline-specific learning and leadership goals for the trainee.
- Explain how the competencies could enhance the interdisciplinary learning goals of ALL LEND trainees by providing more in-depth disability content.
The competencies ARE NOT a separate curriculum

- They supplement the MCHB Competencies, they do not replace them.

The competencies ARE NOT a requirement

- They are a guide offering suggestions to spark ideas on how to meet the discipline-specific learning needs and leadership goals of a Self-Advocate trainee.
Why the Competences were Created

- Self-Advocacy is not a professional discipline.
- There are no structures of professional requirements in place to direct a trainee’s learning.
- Competencies were created to offer a structure to meet the leadership goals of a Self-Advocate, including those with IDD.
Self-Assessment Scale

- Help to identify areas of interest and measure skill level at the beginning of LEND training.
- Identify learning and leadership goals.
- Create a personalized learning and leadership plan.
- Measure progress at the completion of LEND training.
The Competencies

1. Self-Advocacy
2. Disability Civil Rights Movement & Other Models of Disability
3. Advocacy and Policy
4. Disability Culture
5. Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion
Definition: The DCRM started when people with disabilities began to advocate for equal rights in the United States. It was inspired by the American Civil Rights Movement, a group advocating for the equality of Black Americans since the 1950s. “Nothing About Us Without Us” is a motto of the DCRM. A Model of Disability is a description of how or why disability is the way it is. It affects how people with disabilities are talked about and treated in their community. The two most common models of disability are the social model and the medical model.
Self-Advocates will know the following:

1. The way the DCRM has changed the lives of people with disabilities for the better.
2. The different Models of Disability and how they are used by the community.
3. How the DCRM and Models of Disability are connected.
Learning Objective: Explain the Disability Civil Rights Movement

Recommended Activities:

- Watch Crip Camp and talk about the video with other trainees.
- Name important and well-known disability civil rights leaders and describe their leadership styles.
- Look up national and state laws that protect people with disabilities.
How to Use the Competencies

- Review the five (5) Competencies and the Self-Assessment scale. The Self-Assessment score informs the objectives aligned with the trainee’s learning goals.
- Trainee will focus on 2 or 3 competencies.
- Use the learning plan included in each Competency to pick learning objectives.
- Check the possible activities provided with each learning objective for the trainee to complete.

Recommendations for SA Faculty or Mentor

- The competencies are a teaching tool for the SA Faculty or Faculty Mentor.
- For new SA Faculty, use facilitated discussion guide (Appendix 3).
- SA Faculty or Faculty/Mentor will familiarize themselves with the 5 competencies and activities.
- Be mindful of your trainee’s learning style.
- Establish a regular meeting time. Frequency and duration will be personalized by the trainee’s wants and needs over the course of the training.
Recommendations for LEND Directors

- Program director shares SA Competencies alongside the MCHB Competencies.
- Incorporate comprehensive activities into your LEND curriculum.
- The SA discipline adds to the interdisciplinary learning organically by utilizing the Competencies, ex. Civil Rights activity.
Next Steps

- Ready to use with your trainees!
- LEND Program Quality Improvement (LPQI)
  - Helps individual LEND training programs improve the quality of LEND training in core competencies (family-professional partnership, interdisciplinary teams, advocacy/policy) through two measurement tools (trainee self-report and faculty observation).
  - In 2023-24, the LPQI Network will be reviewing and updating all current competencies/measurement tools. This includes determining how best to incorporate Self-Advocacy within the measurement tools.
