| Public Policy | AUCD Disability Policy Fellowship
Association of University Centers on Disabilities
Application Deadline: Applications are due September 30, 2010 but will continue to be accepted until the position is filled. The Fellowship is expected to begin January, 2011, Annual
The overall purpose of the Leadership Fellowship in Disability is to offer a significant experience in national level activities related to policy and legislative development, advocacy, program development, technical assistance, and association administration. The Leadership Fellowship in Disability is envisioned as a mutually beneficial arrangement whereby the participating individual, the home center/program and the AUCD central office benefit. The individual will benefit from the experiences and contacts developed during the fellowship period. The program will benefit from having "one of its own" participating in national level activities and subsequently informing home UCEDD/LEND/MRDDRC staff of their activities and knowledge gained. The AUCD will benefit from having increased human resources to assist in carrying out its work as well as having someone with first-hand knowledge from the field as a voice in Washington, DC. |
| Public Policy | Professional Public Policy Fellowship Program
The Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation
Application Deadline: March 5, 2010 (2010-2011 term), Annual
The Kennedy Foundation supports a Public Policy Fellowship Program for professionals in the field of intellectual disabilities. Each year, the Foundation brings accomplished individuals to Washington, DC, where they actively participate in public policy development through work on the staff of a member of Congress, congressional committee or federal agency. Former Fellows describe the Fellowship as a pivotal event in their professional lives. The year offers exciting opportunities to be involved in policy and legislative development in key areas such as special education, health and mental health care for persons with intellectual disabilities, child care, housing, justice, child welfare, employment and other areas related to improving the quality of life for individuals with intellectual disabilities. |
| Public Policy | Congressional Branch and Executive Branch Fellowships
The Society for Research in Child Development
Both Fellowships provide exciting opportunities for researchers to come to Washington, DC and use developmental science outside of the academic setting to inform public policy. These fellowships are open to doctoral scientists from any discipline relevant to child development, and both early and mid-career professionals are encouraged to apply. The goals of the fellowships are: (1) to contribute to the effective use of scientific knowledge about child development in the formation of public policy; (2) to educate the scientific community about the development of public policy; and (3) to establish a more effective liaison between developmental scientists and the Federal policy-making mechanisms. |

| International Research| International Research Scientist Development Award
Fogarty International Center (NIH)
Application Deadline: March 1, 2011
The IRSDA is part of the FIC strategy to encourage research collaborations in developing countries to build research capacity to address global health research priorities. Only U.S. citizens and permanent U.S. residents (green card holders) are eligible to apply for the IRSDA. The purpose is to provide junior U.S. scientists with an opportunity to embark on or enhance the careers in research related to global health, and to prepare them for independent research careers. The Mentored Career Development Award (K01) is similar to other NIH career development awards, but requires a focus on research in developing countries. Two mentors are required, one in the U.S. and the other in the developing country where research is being conducted. The mentors must have an on-going or previous research collaboration. The award is initially for a period of up to four years and can be renewed for up to three additional years if certain requirements are met. |

   The mission of the NICHD Center for Population Research, Reproductive Sciences Branch (RSB) is to reduce the burden of illness and disorder in the reproductive system and support scientific research to increase our understanding of basic knowledge of the processes that underlie the success or failure of human reproduction. The RSB also support training of scientists in the research of these areas. In order to carry out this mission, it is important to identify significant global health issues and to develop creative approaches that promote international research, training and collaborations in the reproductive sciences. The main goal of the Americas Fellowship in Reproductive Sciences (AFRS) is to advance the training of qualified Latin American reproductive scientists by enhancing their basic or clinical research skills in a research setting in the U.S. and Canada. |

| Science Policy v    | Jefferson Science Fellowships

   US Department of State

   Application Deadline: January 14, 2011

   Tenured academic scientists and engineers from U.S. institutions of higher learning are eligible for selection to be Jefferson Science Fellows. Each Fellow will spend one year at the U.S. Department of State for an on-site assignment in Washington, D.C. that may also involve extended stays at U.S. foreign embassies and/or missions. All JSF assignments will be designed in consultation with regional and/or functional bureaus within the U.S. Department of State. While in general JSF assignments will involve providing up-to-date expertise in the rapidly advancing science, technology, and engineering (STE) arenas that routinely impact the policy decisions encountered by the U.S. Department of State, each Fellow will also be expected to become conversant with the functional operation of the U.S. Department of State. In doing so, the JSF program complements and enhances the existing efforts by both the continuing employees within the U.S. Department of State and other temporary fellows supported by non-governmental organizations who address STE issues. Following the fellowship year, the Jefferson Science Fellow will return to his/her academic career, but will remain available to the U.S. Department of State for short-term projects over the following five years. |

The W.E.B. DuBois Fellowship Program seeks to advance the field of knowledge regarding the confluence of crime, justice, and culture in various societal contexts. DuBois Fellows will be asked to focus on policy-relevant questions in a manner that truly reflects their saliency as an integral part of the American past, present, and, increasingly, its future. The Fellowship places particular emphasis on crime, violence, and the administration of justice in diverse cultural contexts. DuBois Fellows will contribute to NIJ's national criminal justice research program by studying topics of mutual interest to the Fellow and NIJ. Researchers from all academic disciplines are encouraged to apply.
