2020 Emerging Leaders Map

We are excited to share the 2020 AUCD Emerging Leaders Map! The theme of this year’s map is “Enhancing Access: Opening Doors with and for People with Disabilities.” We feel that “Access” can be defined in many ways, whether it is access to appropriate medical care and/or evaluations, mental health and community services, jobs, access to new research projects or creating accessible spaces. Our hope for this year’s map is to showcase the many diverse ways that emerging leaders are working to enhance access for people with disabilities and facilitate dialogue and collaboration between centers.

The Map provides an opportunity for you to explore and learn more about each trainee and early career leader. When clicking on a pin from a Program/Center, you’ll learn more about how each trainee centers people with disabilities/disabled people and how they are an advocate for the disability community.

NH-ME LEND 2020 Cohort Raises Expectations for All by Meaghan Cullinane
7/20/20
“No one rises to low expectations.” New Mexican Congresswoman Deborah Haaland’s words motivated leaders and trainees alike during the Hill Visit day at the AUCD conference in Washington, DC, “Leading Change Together,” this past November. These words were shared with the NH-ME LEND cohort and guided us through a rigorous training year working to improve the health and education of children and youth with neurodevelopmental disabilities by engaging in training related to interdisciplinary, family-centered, culturally competent systems of care.

Va-LEND Thrives Amid COVID-19
6/8/20
Presentation and discussion of research posters and leadership presentations herald the end of the Va-LEND program for the academic year at Virginia Commonwealth University. They are typically lively events marked by discussion, acknowledgement of trainee achievements, and fellowship. This year was very different due to the commonwealth’s response to COVID-19 and need to socially distance.
Yet the transition to online formats for both events didn’t put a damper on the energy level for trainees or other attendees. The Co-Training Directors and faculty worked to ensure a smooth transition for the virtual events, such as by creating virtual breakout rooms for poster presentations as well as a gallery in which attendees could browse a variety of posters to preserve the interaction.
During this year’s leadership presentations, trainees acknowledged both the challenge of working during the pandemic and also the opportunity to serve and plan. The level of engagement was high. Our trainees continue to inspire us. Va-LEND congratulates our graduates, despite our difficulty in figuring out how to shake their hands at graduation, and looks forward to continuing to train the next generation of leaders in the field of neurodevelopmental disabilities.
